Specialists in Rotable Component Supply and Management

About Us

Airline Services Components Ltd (ASC) specialises in the supply and management of rotatable components for the commercial aviation market, with a particular focus and expertise in the support of Boeing and Airbus narrowbody fleets.

With a large storage and distribution facility ideally located at London Gatwick Airport, ASC provides nose to tail support solutions through its 24/7 AOG Desk to customers around the globe, 365 days a year. This dynamic company is led by a strong management team with considerable experience in the aviation industry, including airline management and operations, component support services and MRO activities.

'With a proven track record and a proactive approach to a rapidly evolving industry, we have a commitment to offering the very highest standards of service at a competitive price.'

The management structure and customer support organisations are geared towards the time crucial demands of the airline industry enabling ASC to make quick, intelligent decisions, thereby expediting the supply process and saving both time and money for the airline customer.

In addition to our own group in-house repair capability, we have forged partnerships with a number of major component R&O facilities and OEMs, and are well placed to manage major PBH and CPAL support programmes from our logistics and distribution centre at London Gatwick Airport, together with stock held at various strategic hubs around the world.

We pride ourselves on a good working relationship with the airline and aviation community. Our approach to customer services focuses on a dedication and commitment to each customer and respect for their unique requirements.

The Airline Services Group

Complete Nose to Tail Support

ASC is part of the Airline Services Group, along with its sister company – the Manchester-based Airline Services Ltd (ASL). ASL provides essential maintenance, repair and overhaul services to more than one hundred airlines and aviation businesses throughout the UK and internationally, as well as ramp services and full cabin interior solutions.

The group's Workshop division incorporates the repair and overhaul of cabin interiors, aircraft seats, galley equipment, lighting, in-flight entertainment and other avionic systems from its repair facilities at Manchester and Stansted airports.

ASL's Ramp Operations division operates from twelve major UK airports and is the leading provider of essential turnaround services throughout the UK. Aircraft de-icing and other ramp services are all aimed at minimising customers' aircraft time on ground.

ASL Aircraft Component Repair provides high quality reliable MRO services across a diverse range of aircraft types. Operating from its dedicated 24,000 sq. ft. state-of-the-art repair facility at London Stansted Airport, ASL has brought its core values of quality, reliability and performance to the area of component repair. ASL has an extensive capability offering, with guaranteed turn times, competitive pricing, and EASA and FAA 8130 Dual Release certification.
